Civilian Travelers Beware; Change in Rules

Effective the first of October new rules went into effect regarding reimbursement of civilian Department of Defense travelers on the quarters portion of the per diem.

According to the travel pay office, reimbursement for the quarters portion of the per diem or actual expense allowance will not be made to DoD civilian travelers TDY to installations where adequate government and/or contracted quarters are available but not utilized.

Exceptions will be made when the use of the quarters would adversely affect the performance of the assigned mission.

Change 146 to the Joint Travel Regulations Vol. II will contain the details of the requirement. Previously, the use of government quarters has been at the option of the DoD civilian traveler.

Great Weather, Great Crowd, Great Day for CFC Rally

"Nothing could be finer" go the lyrics of a famous song and that was certainly the case October 3rd when the Aerospace Center Combined Federal Campaign was begun during a noon hour rally.

The weather was beautiful as some 700 persons enjoyed the picnic atmosphere on the Center's parade ground. Music was furnished by the Air Force Band of Mid-America from Scott Air Force Base and the food was served barbecue style by the Davis Catering Company (dining hall concessionaire).

Television personality, Max Roby, served as the master of ceremonies. He kept things moving

Bigger Checks Help Holiday Plans

The Federal pay raise approved by the President recently came at an excellent time for most employees as thoughts begin to turn to the holiday buying season.

The pay raise, which applies to all military personnel and Federal general schedule employees, is an across the board increase of 7.05 percent at all pay levels. (At presstime the official tables were not yet available.)

For members of the military the pay raise was reflected in their first checks after October 1st. For the civilian employees of the Aerospace Center located in St. Louis the increase will be effective with the October 9 pay period and shown in the check received October 28th. For the Aerospace Center employees at the Kansas City Office the increase will be effective on the October 2nd pay period and reflective in the checks of October 21.

Share Concern

Early Combined Federal Campaign returns show that Aerospace Center people are Fair Sharing in ever increasing numbers and dollar amounts, and are making greater use of payroll deduction convenience.

At presstime, reports indicated a 12% boost in Fair Sharers over a like period of the '76 campaign. Returns also reflect payroll deduction contributing at a 74% clip with payroll givers having accounted for 91% of the $54,833 total gift collected to date.

Asst. AF Secretary To Be AFA Speaker

The Honorable Dr. John J. Martin, assistant secretary of the Air Force (Research, Development and Logistics) will be the guest speaker at the joint meeting of the Spirit of St. Louis and Scott AFB chapters of the Air Force Association.

This year's meeting hosted by the Spirit of St. Louis Chapter, will be held at the Airport Marriott Hotel on November 12.

Explorer Post To Be Revived

The Aerospace sponsored Explorer Post (9240) will be activated this month, according to Bob Champlin, Post Advisor. The reactivation comes in response to community needs for a post dealing with the field of mapping, charting and geodesy.

To make the program a success, volunteer advisors and associate advisors are needed to meet the leadership requirements established by the scout headquarters.

DMAAC employees and their friends are encouraged to invite high school age sons and daughters to join the post which will participate in activities involving cartography, geodesy, photogrammetry and non-related social and scout events.

Information can be obtained from the post advisor, Bob Champlin, ext 4458 or 846-2872 (home). Bob welcomes calls from those interested in volunteering services to the post or from those interested in joining the post.

Dr. Martin was appointed Assistant Secretary of the Air Force in July of 1976. He has had experience in the fields of military systems, intelligence, and management. Prior to his appointment he had served as Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force since September 1974. From 1973 until 1974, he worked for the Director of Central Intelligence in positions dealing with the formulation of foreign intelligence programs and budgets, and with intelligence information handling and presentation.

Fetal Alcohol Syndrome

Recent research reports indicate that heavy use of alcohol by women during pregnancy may result in a pattern of abnormalities in the offspring, termed the fetal alcohol syndrome, which consists of specific congenital and behavioral abnormalities. Studies undertaken in animals corroborate the initial observations in humans and indicate as well an increased incidence of stillbirths, resorptions and spontaneous abortions. Both the risk and the extent of abnormalities appear to be dose-related, increasing with higher alcohol intake during the pregnancy period. In human studies, alcohol is an unequivocal factor when the full pattern of the fetal alcohol syndrome is present. In cases where all of the characteristics are not present, the correlation between alcohol and the adverse effects is complicated by such factors as nutrition, smoking, caffeine and other drug consumption.

Given the total evidence available at this time, pregnant women should be particularly conscious of the extent of their drinking. While safe levels of drinking are unknown, it appears that a risk is established with ingestion above 3 ounces of absolute alcohol, or 6 drinks per day. Between 1 ounce and 3 ounces, there is still uncertainty but caution is advised. Therefore, pregnant women and those likely to become pregnant should discuss their drinking habits and the potential dangers with their physicians.

New Officers Take PR Assignments

Bits And Pieces

From the Black book:

We must start with a word of congratulations to some of our outstanding runners from the Aerospace Center. If you happened to note the October 2 issue of the Post-Dispatch you probably also noted the large photo of the run to the Arch. You might have even noted DMAAC's Major Phil Wilder in the middle of the front row leading the group down Market Street. What you might not have seen quite so readily was the familiar view of our Director as he trudged along in the middle of the pack. It is reported, by the 6th Floor reporter, Colonel St. Clair, that the Director was on the front row but when he saw the reporters dropped back to allow the Major to have the spotlight. The run was seven miles and we congratulate all who made it.

Our attention has been called to the omission of the H in Don Harvey's last name in the last edition of the Orientor. It was strictly an oversight in type setting and we apologize for removing the H from Harvey.

The last celebration of Veterans Day in October comes up this year, the 24th in fact. Next year it will return to the time honored 11th of November. In either case, whether you celebrate in October or November, don't forget it honors those who served and are serving in our Nation's Armed Forces. A tip of the Black hat to them all.

Three Center employees visited six area schools to explain the program. Employees involved were Mrs. Beverly Jamerison, ACNU; William Brown, SDC; and J. Edward Jones, GDG.

Schools visited included McKinley, Southwest, Sumner, Mercy, Ritenour and St. Thomas Aquinas.

Record Keeping Should Be A Group Effort

Keeping records should be a family affair, rather than the responsibility of just one member of the household. This is especially helpful to military families who move several times during the Servicemember's career and may be separated from the head of the household in the event of unaccompanied tours of duty.

It is important that everybody concerned be in on the decisions that affect the future of the family. Each person needs to know:

- What emergency numbers to call if the need arises.
- Who the legal and financial advisers are, and how to reach them by telephone.
- Where life, health, automobile, and other insurance policies are located.

- Where a copy of each individual will is located.
- What documents are in the safe deposit box.
- Where other records are kept, including the household inventory, cancelled checks and income tax information.

In the final analysis, a family can function best within a framework that is meaningful to all its members. The family that develops a satisfactory system for keeping records is likely to do a more realistic job of planning for the future.

A free pamphlet, "Keeping Records—What To Discard," provides information to help families think through their record system requirements, including suggestions on where records should be kept and a form for developing a net worth statement. The pamphlet is available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.
